The fifth of the 13 $10,000 Championship Events did not disappoint and brought us another accomplished final table that boasted a total of six bracelets and several million dollars in earnings. In fact, only one player in the line-up, Chris Wallace, hadn't previously made a WSOP final table. Richard Ashby did so just about a week ago when he finished second to Brock Parker in the $10,000 Omaha Hi-Lo event.

Chris Wallace defeated Randy Ohel in a short heads-up match, earning his first bracelet and taking home the $507,614 first place prize money. Ohel received $313,715 for his runner up finish. The final table lasted a grueling six hours. Five-handed play lasted more than an hour before two-time bracelet winner Max Pescatori busted, followed shortly by Ashby, who was at his second final table of the summer. Ashby will close in on the Player of the Year leader Justin Bonomo, who also cashed in the event, but will not surpass him.
