Following a sickness at Coconut Creek, Austin Farmer bounces back to win gold in Indiana.

Austin Farmer seized the Six Max honors at the Horseshoe Southern Indiana Circuit series, granting him a debut World Series of Poker gold ring. The 22-year-old from North Chesterfield, Virginia vanquished a field of 164 players in Event #6: $600 No-Limit Hold'em Six Max Big Blind Ante.

The tournament took two days to complete. Farmer began Day 2 as chip leader and achieved a final-table berth in the same position. He eventually faced off with William Davis in a tough heads-up match for the Six Max honors. Farmer did well to maintain his lead and scooped every chip in play in the end, making his trip all worthwhile.

I drove eight and a half hours to get here. I didn't even think I was going to come here at first," said Farmer. "I went to Coconut Creek; had bronchitis the entire time. Didn't get much poker done there.

A spell of sickness at the Coconut Creek Circuit stop kept Farmer off the felt for the most part. Following that, he agreed to attend the S. Indiana series because a good friend of his was ready to grind the Circuit.

It ultimately turned out to be a valuable decision for Farmer. Aside from the gold ring, the young gun also walked away with $23,648 and 50 Casino Championship points.
