NEIL MCFAYDEN WINS EVENT #2 AT THE RIO

McFayden enters, wins tournament just after trans-Atlantic flight

17 February, 2019 (Las Vegas, Nev.) – Neil McFayden became the latest WSOP Circuit ring winner on Sunday, winning Event #2: $400 No-Limit Hold'em at the Rio in Las Vegas. McFayden earned $23,605 for his victory.

"I'm in shock, really. I'm exhausted, but very happy. It was a very tough final table. It took a long time. We played nine-handed for about two and a half hours. I think that took its toll on everyone. I though everyone played really well. I hit hands at crucial times, and I got very lucky all in a couple times when I could've easily busted."

The tournament was event tougher for McFayden than for most players because of his travel schedule on the way to Vegas. "I flew in from London on Friday night," he said. "And I registered on Saturday, and I was still on British time. So I was very, very tired towards the end of Day 1. I think I was just trying to focus. Today I was short a lot, so I was just trying to hang in. And I picked the right times to get my chips in."
