GINO LEVRINI WINS 3RD CIRCUIT RING IN LAS VEGAS

Poker pro from Reston crosses $250,000 in lifetime tournament earnings

Gino Levrini topped a field of 426 entries to take down the biggest chunk of the $140,580 prize pool for $29,164 in Event #8. "It's pretty cool," said Levrini. This is his third career World Series of Poker Circuit ring, but is far from his biggest cash. "I've been doing this for about 15 years now," explained Levrini. This puts the poker pro's lifetime tournament earnings over $250,000.

Like many, Levrini began playing poker via home games with friends. "Just playing with buddies and stuff like that – a few drinks. The big thing that caught my eye is, at first I was enjoying the game, not taking it too seriously. But my buddy read my hand, like perfect. I remember being so impressed. Ever since then I was hooked, because I thought it was an actual mind game you know."

While there are a wide variety of training sites and solvers available, Levrini does his own thing. "I just practice, I just play. I'm not big into studying. I go over my mistakes in my head, like when I'm driving home. I'm thinking about the hands, if I played it right. I don't watch videos or anything I'm self-taught."
