JEFFREY GOTTS WINS MONSTER STACK FOR 1ST RING

Video engineer from Las Vegas books his biggest tournament cash at Planet Hollywood

After two full days of play, Jeffrey Gotts has won his first World Series of Poker Circuit ring in the Monster Stack, topping a huge field of 617 entries. This is Gotts' biggest career cash for $38,328, and is also his first ever tournament win. "It's awesome. I'm exhausted, but it feels great!" exclaimed Gotts.

"I haven't played live in over a year. I usually play Sundays online, but it usually gets in the way of plans." While Gotts has not been playing much poker until now, he does study poker content to stay sharp. "I have a Run It Once subscription, and I play with some of the poker software that's out there."

The 57-year-old is a video engineer by trade, but plays poker recreationally. Gotts' earnings have now crossed $80,000 in total, and he has now added a coveted piece of jewelry to his collection.
