Christina Hill Wins the Harrah's H.O.R.S.E. Event

The newest World Series of Poker Circuit ring winner is Christina Hill. The Texas native outlasted a 120-player field in Event #7: $400 H.O.R.S.E. to earn her first career WSOP Circuit ring and the top payout of $10,956.

Hill started Day 2 in the middle of the pack with 20 players remaining. She said she played tight, which is a little different than her normal game. It paid off and helped her reach the final table. She was short-stacked throughout much of the final table. When she got heads up against Ryan Caskey, she was the short stack. But then things changed.

"I got on an incredible rush. He had me out chipped big time," said Hill.

The stud games came up in the rotation and Hill said she was hit by the deck hard, which resulted in a quick heads up battle leaving Hill as the final competitor standing. Caskey's runner-up prize amounted to $6,765.

"I don't think I made any mistakes today," said Hill. "I'm proud of that."

Hill works for GE Healthcare Women's Health Ultrasound. She sells ultrasound equipment. Poker remains as one of her top hobbies. It's the busy season at work for Hill, but she has used the weekend to come out to Vegas to relax and play some poker.

"I love when there are mixed games tournaments because they are not around that often, said Hill. I take any opportunity I can to play in those and try to get better."

This marked Hill's second career World Series of Poker cash. Her first was in 2009 at the Caesar's Palace Circuit in a No-Limit Hold'em event.
